

COLETTE ARREDONDO

With eight years of experience at AGA, Colette works on all phases of the design and building process. She has a degree from Notre Dame's School of Classical Architecture, where she studied the Orders and proportion in their historical context. She appreciates the depth of design development practiced at the office, which extends from master planning to the smallest moulding details.

Education

B. Arch., University of Notre Dame
Rome Studies Program

Experience with Allan Greenberg, Architect, LLC

Colette has worked on a variety of residential projects. She was involved in the design development and construction document phases for a 15,000-s.f. residence and a 19,000-s.f. residence. She served as Project Manager for renovations of a home in Connecticut and a Park Avenue apartment.

Other Professional Experience

Colette spent a summer in construction as assistant to the superintendent on a 194,000-s.f. commercial project. She managed daily reports of all construction activity and served as a liaison between the field and the architectural office.

She also studied architecture in Rome for a year during which she was involved in an urban renewal competition for the San Lorenzo quarter of the city.
